

Statement Analysis® Interviewing Techniques

Learn how to detect deception in a verbal and written statement

Statement Analysis® is the process of examining a person's words to see if the subject is being truthful or deceptive. Even though people may lie and withhold information their words will betray them. People will always phrase their statement based on all their knowledge. Therefore, their statement will often contain information they did not intend to share. The key to detecting deception is to know what to look for in a person's statement.

In this training, Mark McClish will share his techniques on how to analyze a verbal and written statement to detect deception. He will also provide insight on how to obtain additional information from a statement. By using excerpts from today's headlines, Mark gives a presentation that is current and unforgettable. After attending this training, you will begin to observe things in a verbal and written statement that you never noticed before.

MARK McCLISH

Mark McClish is a retired Supervisory Deputy United States Marshal. From 1990 through 1999, he taught interviewing techniques at the U.S. Marshals Service Training Academy. During this time, he conducted research on deceptive language and developed the Statement Analysis® techniques to determine if a person is lying or telling the truth.

After retiring from the Marshals Service in 2009, Mark started Advanced Interviewing Concepts. His company provides interviewing skills training and offers assistance in analyzing statements. Mark has appeared on numerous television and radio programs. He is the author of the books I Know You Are Lying and Don't Be Deceived.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This training is only open to law enforcement personnel or those individuals who work in a law enforcement related field.

These techniques can be used when conducting or watching an interview, when listening to a 911 call or when analyzing a written statement.

THE TECHNIQUES

Statement Analysis® is the most accurate way of detecting deception. Polygraphs limit you to asking "Yes" or "No" type questions. Body language techniques can be hard to recognize and require interpretation. With the Statement Analysis® techniques, you never have to guess or infer. This is because people mean exactly what they say.
